Thanks for all of your advice, you have been extremely helpful. As soon as this house sells we can make some firm decisions, and until then I will be looking more into financing. Hopefully it will work itself out and we can make this happen. You seem to be very knowledgeable and it's very nice to talk to someone who is so realistic. I have been doing a lot of online research on all of those different fees such as impact fees, etc. so I kind had a good idea, but every builder I've been in contact with is just trying to get you to work with them and they will give you NO information. Thanks for the help! M Johnson
